Three boys who escaped from Boys' Industrial School, Lancaster, Friday, in a stolen automobile were captured on West Main Street Friday night by Circleville police and confined to City Jail. They were Elmer Radcliff, 17, 917 Wayne Avenue, Dayton; his brother, Charles 14, and Allen Musick, 16, 806 Richard Street, Dayton.

Local authorities learned of the trio's escape late Friday afternoon when the report was broadcast over the police radio. Employees at filling stations and businesses at edge of the city were notified of the escape and asked to watch for three boys who might be walking along the road.

Shortly before midnight local police received a phone call from an East Main Street filling station attendant who said three boys had stopped at his station and asked to exchange the spare tire on their automobile for five gallons of gasoline. Patrolmen George Green and Elmer Merriman had started out East Main Street in the police cruiser to investigate when they met the three boys driving west. They turned around and chased them to West Main Street where the boys were forced to stop.

At police headquarters the three said that after they had escaped from the school they had gone to 313 Sylvia Street, Lancaster, and had stolen numerous articles of clothing, a prayer book, and other articles. Then they had taken the car of Kelly Hannan, Lancaster car dealer, and headed for Circleville on Route 22.

Local police had captured the boys before Lancaster authorities learned of the stolen car. Hannan will come to Circleville after his automobile Saturday. Police Chief William McCready said.

All three boys entered the B. I. S. three weeks ago on theft charges.

Hollywood's Latest: Go-Cart Brides

Studios Weep as Their Little Girls—Deanna Durbin and Judy Garland—Plan Their Next Roles, as Blushing Brides

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., March 29—Every time you ask movie officials when Judy Garland is going to marry David Rose they give you the same look youngsters give Grandma when she glares over her spectacles and demands: "Who has been in the cookie jar?" A blank stare, at nothing in particular, tinged with reddish touches of embarrassment.

Or could it be fear? Yes, probably it is a sort of fear, caused by the sight of Judy—nee Baby Frances Gumm—leaping from flat heels and rompers, into pivot-heeled sandals and an off-the-shoulders dancing frock to rumba at Mocambo. "Durn it," the fretting officials lament, "why does our tenth at the box-office dream child have to endanger the decimal point with a love affair?" Not that Dave Rose is Judy's first romance. Her list includes Freddie Bartholomew; the toughie, Bobbie Jordan, who made a perfect partner for our rug-cutting Judy; Dan Dailey, Jr.; even Artie Shaw who, by the way, is no chee-ild.

Nevertheless this happens to be the first serious romance, the one that brings Grand Canyon frowns to the foreheads of studio producers. It does no good to shoot those "throw 'em off the track" informants, with Jackie Cooper's photograph prominently displayed. He is Bonita Granville's boy friend. Nor does it remedy the situation to link her with Mickey Rooney.

Rooney Is Out

Though Rooney gave her an official welcome to her studio, by taking her on a tour of inspection when she first arrived there, scared, gawky, freckled, unsung. Though they team together, personally appear together and all the rest, everyone knows Mickey Rooney maneuvers girl friends in dozen lots, the same as a buyer at the wholesale market. In fact, last season in Miami Beach, his cabana was so surrounded by adoring femininity that Mickey scarcely got his toes wet.

Yes, it undeniably is Rose for Judy's mooning glances and the cheek-to-temple affection poses. Unfortunately, Dave Rose's di-voice from Martha Raye is not final; also the poor chap has another bugaboo. Quite attractive actually, he photographs with parentheses under the eyes, which gives a slightly sinister look toward our sweetie-pie Judy.

That is one advantage Vaughn Paul, fiance of Deanna Durbin, has over Rose. Paul is photogenic, enough to look so trust-worthy, as he modestly places himself behind Deanna to form a handsome background for her white fox coat and pattered-mystery gardenias. He will hold his place, even with the Hollywood actors, being six feet tall and somewhere in the 180-pound area.

Two Golden Girls

These two famous girls, who incidentally were bosom friends before being parted by that champion partner, Fame and Fortune, are now in the same boat. Deanna Durbin's studio is taking her growing up more gracefully than Judy's. In fact they simply have given in to the inevitable.

Though you have to feel a companionable sympathy for the people she has worried, on the other hand you have to admit Juliet-Deanna is entitled to happiness after having lifted her studio from rags to riches.

Despite its wealth and security, Judy's studio also has benefited by her popularity. To the extent of making successful the microphone gag: "Out at M. G. R.—Metro, Garland and Rooney."

The local board mailed 100 more questionnaires to registrants Friday. They have now passed the 1,800 mark. Questionnaires will continue to be sent out until all registrants in the county have been classified.

Next contingent, which will include nine men, will be sent to Fort Hayes, Columbus, next Thursday.

Reuters Says Nazi Attache Recalled To Berlin From Belgrade

LONDON, March 29—A state of siege has been proclaimed in Yugoslavia, according to a Reuters (British) dispatch from Vichy, France, today.

The dispatch was based on a report received at Vichy from Budapest, Hungary.

The dispatch said the Yugoslavian people were informed of the state of siege by posters placed in the streets and by radio announcements.

It stated the Yugoslavian people were asked to obey orders issued by the army and halt any foreign elements which might take advantage of the situation to cause trouble.

BELGRADE, March 29—Premier Gen. Dusan Simovic's new Yugoslavian cabinet met today to determine its internal and foreign policies in the face of steady German pressure for speedy, outright acceptance of the Berlin-Rome-Tokyo alliance.

At the same time the government called more troops to the colors, authorities began distribution of total mobilization cards to 300,000 reservists who will be added to the 1,200,000 Yugoslavian troops already under arms.

Progress Being Made On Recreation Center Work

By the end of next week grading and actual construction work should start on the Ted Lewis Recreation Center, Charles Bosworth, in charge of the NYA project, announced Saturday.

This week the thirty NYA boys who began work Monday morning have cleared the 14 acres of ground of brush and weeds and have laid approximately 500 feet of six-inch tile and 400 feet of four-inch tile along the north west side of the grounds. Tiling should be completed next week, Mr. Bosworth said, with the laying of another main line along the south side of the grounds and the installation of lateral lines to it. About 1,000 feet of six-inch tile and 500 feet of four-inch laterals will be required to drain the grounds. Due to the type of soil, a French drainage system is being used; with the tile placed about 30 inches under the ground and covered with several inches of coarse gravel to act as a filter.

Grading To Be Simple

With the drainage problem solved, grading should be comparatively simple, officials believe. The south side and the middle of the field are low and will require considerable dirt which can be obtained from the high places on the field. Tree planting will follow the grading, with young seedlings secured from Pickaway County farms set out on the grounds. Grass must be sown in the next few weeks if it is expected to get any growth this year, Mr. Bosworth said.

In actual layout of the grounds, which is to include shelter houses, ball diamonds, tennis courts and playground equipment has not been drawn up by the Park Commission, although it is expected to present preliminary plans so that the NYA may continue uninterrupted.

BOARD AT WORK ON KEY STRIKES

Another Rearmament Delay Ended; Harvester Co. Provides Test

WASHINGTON, March 29—The new National Mediation Board started arbitration proceedings in two key National Defense strikes today after its intervention helped settle another rearmament strike last night.

The board, prepared to hold night and Sunday sessions if necessary, split up in panels of three to take up the strike at the Vanadium Steel Company at Pittsburgh and the walkout which has shut down the Condenser Corporation Plant at Plainfield, N. J. Early settlement of the Condenser strike is expected.

A scheduled hearing in the CIO strike at the Universal Cylcop Steel Company at Bridgeville, Pa., was cancelled after the strike was ended last night and 1,400 idle workers there voted to return to their jobs.

The toughest case facing the board, however, will not be taken up until Monday. It comprises the strikes at the Chicago and Richmond, Ind., plants of the International Harvester Company.

The board intervened in the Harvester, Vanadium and Condenser strikes yesterday when it wired both management and labor representatives to Washington to arbitrate their differences.

The board's appeal brought an immediate response from Fowler McCormick, second vice president of the Harvester Co., who replied that various departments would be placed in operating condition March 31. He added that "we are asking the striking unions to join us in meeting your request for resumption of production."

TWO MILL FIRM WORKERS HURT BY FEED BAGS

Two Circleville men, both employees of Circleville milling companies and both neighbors on East High Street, were injured Friday afternoon in similar accidents.

Kenneth Young suffered torn ligaments in his right knee when a bag of feed fell on him when he was working at the J. W. Keshelman and Son mill. He was taken to Berger Hospital for treatment.

Emmett Ecard, who lives in the same neighborhood as Young, is suffering from a dislocated right shoulder. He, too, was struck by a heavy bag, his accident happening at the Ralston-Purina plant. His injury was treated in the office of Dr. E. S. Shane.

Lawrence Lemley Injured By Rock

Lawrence Lemley, South Court Street, is a patient in the Beckley, W. Va., hospital suffering from a fractured pelvis and spine injuries after being struck by a heavy rock during construction work for the Sturms-Dillard Co., near Glenmorgan, W. Va.

His mother, Mrs. Will Lemley, 330 Walnut Street, returned home Saturday from Beckley where she visited her son. She said that his injuries were so severe that he would be hospitalized for several weeks. Doctors at the hospital advised against removing him to the Circleville hospital.

Mr. Lemley has been in Glenmorgan for five months. Mrs. Lemley and their baby are there also.

The accident happened early in the week when Mr. Lemley was "making a blow" (preparing to blast some ground), when the rock fell on his hips. He has been placed in a cast.

Boy, 11, Stealing Ride, Injured Seriously

COLUMBUS, March 29—Eleven-year-old William E. Robson was reported in fair condition in Children's Hospital today. The child suffered possible fractured hips and face abrasions when he was thrown from a coal truck as it turned at an intersection. John Ellis, 12, also was thrown off the truck but escaped injury. The children had gotten on the rear of the truck without the knowledge of the driver, police said.

Acceptance Of Axis Pact, Or 'Blitz' Faced By Belgrade

BERLIN, March 29—Germany will stage a military and air blitzkrieg against Yugoslavia unless Belgrade offers strong evidence of its good will within a few days, neutral quarters in Berlin predicted today.

"War clouds are gathering fast," these sources said, indicating that "patience" of the Reich will not last much beyond the beginning of next week.

BERLIN, March 29—Fate of Yugoslavia hinges solely on the patience of the Reich, authoritative German quarters declared today as the new Belgrade regime sought to stave off a possible "blitz."

Informed quarters indicated Yugoslavian Premier Gen. Dusan Simovic's government is trying to convince Germany that Yugoslavia will respect adherence to the tripartite pact as soon as public excitement has cooled down sufficiently.

Although the Wilhelmstrasse was kept busy by details of the negotiations with Japanese Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuoka, German authorities clearly were preoccupied by developments in Yugoslavia.

It seemed evident that there is a certain amount of scepticism in Berlin over the "real intentions" of the Belgrade regime.

German authorities were represented as wary of any Yugoslavian "dilatory tactics" to which Yugoslavia might resort to gain time.

Convoy of Supplies For Britain Reported Near

WASHINGTON, March 29—One of the most important officials in the government today advised International News Service that plans have been drafted for U. S. naval convoy of merchant ships for Britain and only await President Roosevelt's approval.

This official believes the convoy program will receive the President's approval and be initiated within the next two or three weeks. His words were: "It is decidedly imminent."

Questioned as to nature of the convoy program, the official declined to give details. He called attention however to the President's recent "fireside chat," in which Mr. Roosevelt said:

"The great task of this day, the deep duty which rests on us is to move products from the assembly lines of our factories to the battle lines of democracy—now."

From other sources, it was learned that high navy officials are confident that the U. S. Navy can execute convoy duty in the Atlantic without weakening the U. S. fleet in the Pacific.

From hints dropped, it seems the plan does not include actual conveying of British ships into the war zones. The conveying under consideration appears to be a sort of "protective surveillance," under which U. S. cruisers and destroyers would guard the merchant ships, say, half way across the Atlantic, with British destroyers taking up the convoy duty as the vessels near the waters of the war zone.

This could be accomplished, some authorities believe, without committing an overt act of war against Germany by merely extending the American Neutrality Zone from its present 300-mile limit to the limits of Western Hemisphere waters. Whether or not this theory is sound in international law, it would give the United States an excuse for "protective surveillance" of British merchant ships from our Atlantic ports to the middle of the ocean.

Two Circleville men, both employees of Circleville milling companies and both neighbors on East High Street, were injured Friday afternoon in similar accidents.

Kenneth Young suffered torn ligaments in his right knee when a bag of feed fell on him when he was working at the J. W. Eshelman and Son mill. He was taken to Berger Hospital for treatment.

Emmett Eccard, who lives in the same neighborhood as Young, is suffering from a dislocated right shoulder. He, too, was struck by a heavy bag, his accident happening at the Ralston-Purina plant. His injury was treated in the office of Dr. E. S. Shane.

Lawrence Lemley Injured By Rock

Lawrence Lemley, South Court Street, is a patient in the Beckley, W. Va., hospital suffering from a fractured pelvis and spine injuries after being struck by a heavy rock during construction work for the Sturms-Dillard Co., near Glenmorgan, W. Va.

His mother, Mrs. Will Lemley, 330 Walnut Street, returned home Saturday from Beckley where she visited her son. She said that his injuries were so severe that he would be hospitalized for several weeks. Doctors at the hospital advised against removing him to the Circleville hospital.

Mr. Lemley has been in Glenmorgan for five months. Mrs. Lemley and their baby are there also.

The accident happened early in the week when Mr. Lemley was "making a blow" (preparing to blast some ground), when the rock fell on his hips. He has been placed in a cast.

Reich Claims Yugoslavians May Be Stalling For Time In Crisis

TWO ALTERNATIVES OPEN

Acceptance Of Axis Pact. Or 'Blitz' Faced By Belgrade

BERLIN, March 29—Germany will stage a military and air blitzkrieg against Yugoslavia unless Belgrade offers strong evidence of its good will within a few days, neutral quarters in Berlin predicted today.

"War clouds are gathering fast," these sources said, indicating that "patience" of the Reich will not last much beyond the beginning of next week.

BERLIN, March 29—Fate of Yugoslavia hinges solely on the patience of the Reich, authoritative German quarters declared today as the new Belgrade regime sought to stave off a possible "blitz."

Informed quarters indicated Yugoslavian Premier Gen. Dusan Simovic's government is trying to convince Germany that Yugoslavia will respect adherence to the tripartite pact as soon as public excitement has cooled down sufficiently.

Although the Wilhelmstrasse was kept busy by details of the negotiations with Japanese Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuoka, German authorities clearly were preoccupied by developments in Yugoslavia.

It seemed evident that there is a certain amount of scepticism in Berlin over the "real intentions" of the Belgrade regime.

German authorities were represented as wary of any Yugoslavian "dilatory tactics" to which Yugoslavia might resort to gain time.

ROME—Destruction of one British cruiser and damaging of an aircraft carrier and another cruiser in the Aegean by Italian warplanes was officially announced in Rome today. In a communiqué which told of a British aerial raid on the town of Lecce, situated south of Brindisi in the "heel" of the Italian "boot," the high command said the British warships were bombed during incessant attacks yesterday on convoys in the Mediterranean, carried out by large units of the Italian air force.

LONDON—A speech by Prime Minister Winston Churchill, scheduled for Sunday, has been postponed for a few days, it was announced today. It was believed the Balkan crisis was responsible for the postponement.

LONDON—Scotland Yard today began an investigation of a bomb, mailed from the United States, which exploded in a Mount Pleasant postoffice, in London. Fragments of the bomb—a small, cigar-shaped explosive—were handed over to detectives. The explosion destroyed the contents of a mail bag from the United States.

LONDON—Nazi raiders failed to appear over Britain during the night, the Air Ministry announced today in a communiqué which said there was "nothing to report."

Bomber Denies He'll Quit Ring

Louis, Taking Part In Favorite Pastime, Expects Billy Conn To Be Next Champ

DETROIT, March 29—Joe Louis let one fly down the bowling alley, froze in his follow-through motion, watched the ball smack down nine pins and then ambled over.

"I got no idea of retiring," the heavyweight king said today in reply to a current rumor he will quit the ring within a year. "I'm gonna fight until I feel like I'm slipping—like I'm through. Maybe, if I'm licked, I'll try a comeback. But when I quit, I'd like to retire as undefeated champion."

Thus, ending one of his longest single speeches on record, Joe slipped into a seat and looked for nourishment. Another bowling alley visitor handed him an apple and his molars went to work quietly—like a buzz saw.

Fully recovered from his oration, Joe admitted that U. S. Sam might retire him first—into the Army. His draft number is 378 and he said "they're calling 'em fast" in this district.

Would the Brown Bomber try a comeback after a year in the Army?

"Only if I thought I could lick the first-raters. None of them third-raters for me," Joe said.

"What would he do if he didn't make a comeback?"

To Go To Farm

"I'd spend most of my time on my farm in Utica, Mich.," he said. And if he weren't still fighting, who did he think would be champ?

"Billy Conn. 'Scuse me."

It was Louis' turn to bowl. He scored a strike and someone yelled "whee." Then the champ broke another precedent. He smiled. His favorite sport, next to blasting leather pushers, is blowing up the pins. He said he averages 180 a game.

When the bomber had consumed another apple, he talked about his coming fight with Tony Musto, Abe Simon and Winsome Billy Conn. Joe figures them "his way." "Hard to tell about Musto. Something like Godoy. I think I'll beat him."

"I think the Simon fight will end quicker than the last time. One of us will be gone before the 15th." (It was in this round that Louis stopped the 254-pound giant in a Detroit bout last week.)

"I think I'll knock out Conn," he added.

Of the current heavyweights, Louis places Conn first, then Lou Nova, Max Baer and Simon.

LOOKING AHEAD

NEW YORK—Necessity long has been the mother of invention, but now an invention seeks to become the mother, photographically speaking of unborn children. Recently installed in the New York Daily News building, a coin-in-the-slot "Infantograph" merges the image of a "fella" with that of his "girl" on a picture of a child's body—so they can "see what their children are going to look like."

MAN O'WAR, 24, HEALTHY. WELL AT LOUISVILLE

By Clyde L. Reece
LOUISVILLE, Ky., March 29—Man O' War, the world's greatest thoroughbred racer, celebrated his 24th birthday today, and if appearance and health mean anything he will live, easily, another decade or more.

The mammoth animal, retired to the stud 24 years ago, still appears youthful, weighs 1,375 pounds, eats his fill every day, and enjoys the lavish attention bestowed on him by his owner, Samled D. Riddle, and the thousands who visit him every month.

Harrie Scott, manager of Faraway Farm near Lexington, Ky., reports that Man O' War—"Big Red" as he is familiarly known throughout the world—was never better in his life. "It's Scott's job to see that 'Big Red' is comfortable until he dies, and no human being could receive closer attention or fonder caresses."

"Big Red," standing 16 hands, 2½ inches high now, still has plenty of fire in his old eyes, and there's every evidence that he's the king-pin at the farm, and knows it. No accurate count has been kept of his visitors, but there have been as many as 75,000 at his stall in a single year.

Annual Congregational Meeting To Be Held By Presbyterians

Wednesday Evening Set For Dinner, Election Of Officials

The annual congregational meeting of the First Presbyterian Church will be held Wednesday evening in the social rooms of the church.

The meeting will open with a cooperative dinner at 6:30 p. m. with a business session and election of officers following. Annual reports from various organizations of the church will be read during the meeting. During the last year approximately 20 organizations in the church have been functioning.

Officers elected during the meeting will serve for three years. Those to be elected include three elders, four deacons, and two trustees. One trustee will be elected to serve out an unexpired term. Following the congregational meeting the annual meeting of the Ladies Aid Society will be held with election of officers and annual reports featuring the meeting.

The trustees of the church will meet briefly at the close of the congregational meeting.

Eight new members will be received into membership of the First Presbyterian Church in the worship service Sunday morning. The pastor has chosen as his Lenten theme "The Romance of Religion."

Mrs. Clark Will and Franklin Price will sing a vocal duet "I Waited For the Lord" from the "Hymn of Praise" by Mendelssohn, as a musical feature of the program. The musical staff of the church has been presenting the music of Mendelssohn during the month of March.

The chorale and menuet from "Gothic Suite" by Boellmann, "Spring Song" by Mendelssohn and "Postlude" by Mendelssohn are the organ numbers to be played by Miss Abbe Mills Clarke, organist.

During the Sunday school hour an election of officers will be held. A nominating committee including Mrs. W. L. Mack, Mrs. M. Colville, and S. B. Chambers, will present a slate of candidates and the election will follow. Officers in the Sunday school will be elected for one year.

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Newman Campbell
(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for March 30, is Luke 24:36-53, the Golden Text being Luke 24:49, "Behold, I send forth the promise of My Father upon you.")

IN LAST week's lesson, you remember, our Lord was put to death by His enemies and His body was consigned to the tomb of His friend, Joseph of Arimathea. The women who loved Him "beheld the sepulchre and how the body was laid," and, after procuring spices and ointments to anoint the body, they left Him and went to observe the Sabbath.

Today we omit the scene at the tomb when the Marys went to anoint the body and found it gone, and take up our story when the disciples were gathered together talking, after some of them had seen the Risen Lord.

"And as they thus spake, Jesus Himself stood in the midst of them, and saith unto them, Peace be unto you," the typical eastern greeting.

In spite of what they had heard of Jesus' resurrection from the dead, the disciples were "terrified and affrighted, and supposed that they had seen a spirit."

"And He said unto them, Why are ye troubled? and why do thoughts arise in your hearts? 'Behold My hands and My feet, that it is I myself; handle Me, and see; for a spirit hath not flesh and bones, as ye see Me have.'"

Begin to Rejoice

At those words, they began to rejoice, but still could not believe, so Jesus asked them if they had any food, and when they brought some He ate it to show them that it was indeed He risen from the dead.

He reminded them how He had told them before His death that He would rise again to fulfill the law as written in Moses and the prophets concerning Him. "Then opened He their understanding that they might understand the scriptures."

And further He said: "Thus it is written, and thus it behoved Christ to suffer, and to rise from the dead the third day:

"And that repentance and remission of sins should be preached in His name among all the nations, beginning at Jerusalem. "And ye are witnesses of these things."

The disciples were to start their preaching at Jerusalem, but were told to tarry awhile, "until ye be endued with power from on high"—the Holy Ghost.

Then He led them on the road to Jerusalem as far as Bethany, and He listed up His hands and blessed them.

"And it came to pass, while He blessed them, He was parted from them, and carried up into heaven. All their fear had left them now. The 11 disciples left after the tragedy of Judas' treason and self-destruction, were filled with great joy. Heretofore, when they had met together they were in terror of arrest, and were most careful who was admitted to their presence. But their Master had returned, and although He had again been taken away, they had their instructions to spread the gospel throughout the nations and to fear not. So they worshiped Jesus and returned to Jerusalem, with great joy, where they were "continually in the temple," openly praising and blessing God."

Annual Congregational Meeting To Be Held By Presbyterians

Wednesday Evening Set For Dinner, Election Of Officials

The annual congregational meeting of the First Presbyterian Church will be held Wednesday evening in the social rooms of the church.

The meeting will open with a cooperative dinner at 6:30 p. m. with a business session and election of officers following. Annual reports from various organizations of the church will be read during the meeting. During the last year approximately 20 organizations in the church have been functioning.

Officers elected during the meeting will serve for three years. Those to be elected include three elders, four deacons, and two trustees. One trustee will be elected to serve out an unexpired term. Following the congregational meeting the annual meeting of the Ladies Aid Society will be held with election of officers and annual reports featuring the meeting.

The trustees of the church will meet briefly at the close of the congregational meeting.

Eight new members will be received into membership of the First Presbyterian Church in the worship service Sunday morning. The pastor has chosen as his Lenten theme "The Romance of Religion."

Mrs. Clark Will and Franklin Price will sing a vocal duet "I Waited For the Lord" from the "Hymn of Praise" by Mendelssohn, as a musical feature of the program. The musical staff of the church has been presenting the music of Mendelssohn during the month of March.

The chorale and menut from "Gothic Suite" by Boellmann, "Spring Song" by Mendelssohn and "Postlude" by Mendelssohn are the organ numbers to be played by Miss Abbe Mills Clarke, organist.

During the Sunday school hour an election of officers will be held. A nominating committee including Mrs. W. L. Mack, Mrs. M. Colville, and S. B. Chambers, will present a slate of candidates and the election will follow. Officers in the Sunday school will be elected for one year.

Christ's Commission

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Newman Campbell
(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for March 30, is Luke 24:36-53, the Golden Text being Luke 24:49, "Behold, I send forth the promise of My Father upon you.")

IN LAST week's lesson, you remember, our Lord was put to death by His enemies and His body was consigned to the tomb of His friend, Joseph of Arimathea. The women who loved Him "beheld the sepulchre and how the body was laid," and, after procuring spices and ointments to anoint the body, they left Him and went to observe the Sabbath.

Today we omit the scene at the tomb when the Marys went to anoint the body and found it gone, and take up our story when the disciples were gathered together talking, after some of them had seen the Risen Lord.

"And as they thus spake, Jesus Himself stood in the midst of them, and saith unto them, Peace be unto you," the typical eastern greeting.

In spite of what they had heard of Jesus' resurrection from the dead, the disciples were "terrified and affrighted, and supposed that they had seen a spirit."

"And He said unto them, Why are ye troubled? and why do thoughts arise in your hearts? 'Behold My hands and My feet, that it is I myself; handle Me, and see; for a spirit hath not flesh and bones, as ye see Me have.'"

At those words, they began to rejoice, but still could not believe, so Jesus asked them if they had any food, and when they brought some He ate it to show them that it was indeed He risen from the dead.

He reminded them how He had told them before His death that He would rise again to fulfill the law as written in Moses and the prophets concerning Him. "Then opened He their understanding that they might understand the scriptures."

And further He said: "Thus it is written, and thus it behoved Christ to suffer, and to rise from the dead the third day:

"And that repentance and remission of sins should be preached in His name among all the nations, beginning at Jerusalem."

"And ye are witnesses of these things." The disciples were to start their preaching at Jerusalem, but were told to tarry awhile, "until ye be endued with power from on high"—the Holy Ghost.

Then He led them on the road to Jerusalem as far as Bethany, "and He listed up His hands and blessed them."

"And it came to pass, while He blessed them, He was parted from them, and carried up into heaven. All their fear had left them now. The 11 disciples left after the tragedy of Judas' treason and self-destruction, were filled with great joy. Heretofore, when they had met together they were in terror of arrest, and were most careful who was admitted to their presence. But their Master had returned, and although He had again been taken away, they had their instructions to spread the gospel throughout the nations and to fear not. So they worshiped Jesus and returned to Jerusalem, with great joy, where they were "continually in the temple," openly praising and blessing God."

"Behold, I send forth the promise of My Father upon you."—Luke 24:49.

Scripture—Luke 24:36-53.

Jesus said to them, "Why are ye troubled? And why do thoughts arise in your hearts? Behold My hands and feet, that it is I myself," and He showed them His wounds.

After Jesus had convinced the disciples that it was really He, risen, He led them out as far as Bethany, and He lifted up His hands and blessed them.

UP TO UNCLE SAM
It is time for general recognition of the fact that the biggest fellow in this country is Uncle Sam. Meaning the people of this great nation collectively functioning through their government.

It is time for every loyal and intelligent American to admit that there is a big job of work on hand, demanding all the national energies, and involving the life and future of this country. And it is time to sweep aside all obstacles and get the job done.

The job, for the present, is mainly industrial—getting war supplies and materials made quickly, and shipped across the sea in vast quantities, to give the European democracies a chance to stop the war before it sucks us all in. It is a job for the preservation of all the democracies, particularly our own. And Americans who cannot see this fact must now accept the verdict of the big majority who do see it.

It is now very late in the day to tackle this job with everything we've got. The remaining time must not be wasted. The mills and factories and mines and railroads must run as they never ran before—more smoothly and more efficiently.

They have got to run at capacity. And they will run at capacity if Uncle Sam, losing all patience with stubborn strike leaders and stubborn employers, has to take over war industries and run them himself. He has the power, given him by the people who are his brains and sinews and life-blood, and he will do it if he has to, and he is now driven very close to the edge of doing it.

REBUILDING OUR FORESTS
A CONGRESSIONAL committee concerned with the protection of the nation's forests has outlined a program for that work. The first point is fire fighting and prevention. The committee recommends extension of present facilities for it.

Other points are cooperative management of public and private forest holdings that are close together, rental of forest land to the government for rehabilitation work; development of farm-forest cooperatives; extension of forest research work, and so on.

Destruction of the natural forests has been so great that all the work done in recent years merely makes a good beginning in reforestation. But the country now seems to be awake to the importance of forests in the national economy, and every year finds more trees being planted, more enlightened and efficient forestry work being done, more people interested.

The Nazi propaganda mill grinds away as hard as ever, but the rest of the world doesn't listen much now.

The Balkans mean well, but they balk too much.

Pages From the Diary of An Antiquated Reporter:

Up early on a beautiful morning. Read the prints in a leisurely manner and then went to the back yard for an inspection of Spring's progress. Birds were singing, iris growing by leaps and the big maple apparently ready to burst into leaf. Grass turning green and the garden begging for attention. A fine day to be out of doors, but ahead was work that had to be done, so did crank the wagon and head downtown.

In the mail a letter from David John Shoup, who is seeking information regarding members of his family at one time of these parts. Says his great-grandfather, Henry Shoup, was sheriff of Pickaway County sometime between 1815 and 1820. The former sheriff married Mary Highland and their first four children were born here.

Met Pres Enderlin who told me that he was born on Good Friday and was named after Prescott, a minister. Said that only twice in 66 years has his birthday anniversary fallen on Good Friday.

Pat Kirwin has been called into the armed service and reports next week. Pat is leaving an excellent job, but it will be waiting for him when he returns. Will be quite a difference between army pay and what he has been drawing. And in the meantime steel workers down East demonstrate dissatisfaction over their pay of $15 a day or more and go on strike. Steel is just as necessary to defense as soldiers. Something wrong.

See by the papers that Jan

Valtin, author of "Out of The Night" has been arrested and may be deported to Germany. That will be a death sentence. Have been reading his book for the last three weeks, but as yet am little more than half through. So far, in the book, he is an active communist, but he reforms later, I understand. His association with the Moscow government was enough punishment for anyone it seems to me, and I do hope that he is not returned to Germany. I wouldn't wish my worst enemy that much bad luck.

Karl Herrmann received a letter from Columbus, an owner of property here complaining about rats overrunning his house and ordering that the board of health investigate and eliminate the pests. Well, in view of some of the other governmental activities I suppose such a request is not so unreasonable.

DIES COMMITTEE PROBE
WASHINGTON—Dies committee investigators are quietly probing some sensational information that may rock the Army.

It concerns the mysterious $125,000 fire in the War Department building last October and involves an ex-Army officer.

Dies agents were put on the man's trail by the owner of a small Capital flower shop, who called on Robert Stripling, secretary of the committee, and told him this tale:

The night before the fire, a middle-aged retired Army captain dropped into the shop to chat with a young clerk, with whom he had become friendly. The clerk was described by his employer as having "very liberal views." On this occasion he and his customer discussed the Presidential campaign for a few minutes, when suddenly the latter leaned over and whispered:

"I'm going to tell you something very sensational, but keep it quiet. There will be a fire in the War Department within 24 hours."

The clerk was surprised, but didn't think much about the remark until the following day when the prediction came true. The clerk was scared stiff, feared trouble and decided to keep quiet until he had a chance to talk to his strange acquaintance again.

The retired Army captain didn't reappear for several weeks. Finally he came at night and, according to the florist, was dressed in "flashy new clothes."

But while affable and chatty, he would not discuss the fire or his mysterious prediction about it. Every time the clerk brought up the matter, the customer changed the subject.

More disturbed than ever, the clerk didn't know what to do and for weeks kept silent. But, finally, he decided that it was his patriotic duty to report his information and told the story to his boss who went to the Dies committee. The latter immediately put agents on the trail.

NAVY MYSTERY

Meanwhile, the Navy Department also is working on a mystery—which it is keeping very shush-shush.

A night guard making his rounds noticed a beam of light in a room where airplane files are kept. The guard quietly opened the door and found a man rummaging through the cabinets with a flashlight.

Like all government building guards, the guard was armed with a revolver and carried a whistle. But instead of seizing the intruder, the guard slammed the door and dashed all the way to the guard room on the first floor, and shouted to the officer on duty:

"There's someone upstairs looking at files with a flashlight! What shall I do?"

The officer and another guard rushed to the plane room, but it was empty. They found only some opened cabinets and papers scattered on the floor. A search of the huge building also proved fruitless. The mysterious prowler had vanished.

The next day a check showed that no files were missing. Officials say the intruder must have gained access to the building during the daytime and hid until dark. But that still leaves unexplained how he got in and out, since the building is closely guarded with admittance and exit only by special pass.

Germ Invasion

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

● A reader writes me in agonizing phraseology about boils that he has under the armpit and on the back of the neck. There must be many people who will sympathize with him.

The circumstance is quite peculiar. Theoretically, we would suppose that an infection would produce an immunity so that when it was healed up at one time in one spot, it would not be likely to recur. However, skin infections are subject to relapse of their own. For instance, erysipelas, which is an infection of the skin, is more likely to come as a recurrence than if it hadn't happened at all. A person—and it is usually an elderly person who has erysipelas—will have an attack, completely recover, and then within a week or ten days have another one and go through the experience all over again.

Perhaps the infections in the skin which we call either boils or carbuncles, obey the same immunologic rules. Certain it is that especially in the armpit, boils will come in crops and keep pestering the poor victim indefinitely. The best advice that we can give at the present time is to use an immune sort of substance known as staphylococcus toxoid. This must be given by a doctor because it needs to be given hypodermically at intervals of about every four days. In such cases also the new chemical substances which have been so valuable in the treatment of pneumonia and other sorts of infections—sulfanilamide and sulfathiazole, etc.—should be used.

Hot Fomentation

The most comforting treatment for these recurrent boils is some form of hot fomentation. Treatment by suction cups is also very grateful. Curiously enough, surgical incision is not as likely to be as successful as in other forms of abscess. The modern doctor is in a much better position to take care of all kinds of infections than he was 10 or even 5 years ago. The value of the chemical substances which I mentioned, in the treatment of invasion by certain germs, is undoubtedly very powerful. It was the dream of Doctor Ehrlich, who has been so interestingly celebrated by Dr. Paul de Kruif in his chapter called "The Magic Bullet," that some chemicals would destroy the invading germs and leave the human tissues unaffected. That is why he called it "The Magic Bullet." He thought he could shoot it into the body and it would select the enemy germs, not destroying the others. About twenty years ago one of these magic bullets was invented, called "mercurochrome." It works very well on the surface of the body but it did not do what was expected of it when injected into the blood stream. The recent discovery of sulfanilamide and its cousins and its derivatives, has been far more successful in practice along that line.

USE YOUR OWN TRUMPS
ORDINARILY you do not wish to waste trumps of the longer trump holding in ruffing, as you would like to use those of the shorter holding opposite. But there are times when the smaller trumps of the master hand figure to be worthless for any other purpose, since one opponent is marked as holding a string of somewhat higher trumps. In those cases, your only chance to take tricks with the little cards is by ruffing leads of other suits.

Three club leads came in quick succession, South deciding to ruff the third. He counted up his tricks. Two in spades, two in hearts, two high ones in diamonds made six in sight. Three more were needed. One ruff of clubs and one of spades would make eight, and he ought to be able to get the ninth by making West lead trumps to him once at the end.

thereby building his diamond J into a trick.

So after ruffing the third club, he cashed the spade A and K, ruffed a spade with the diamond 6, took his heart tops and led a third heart to East's J. This left both South and West with four trumps. East led his sole diamond. South played the 9 and West was licked right there. If he had led the two high trumps would this be the winning trick. He actually took it with the 10 and returned his 8, the J winning and the two trump tops completing the contract.

If South had not led that third heart, he could not have made the contract. For West could have exited after getting in by leading a heart to South, forcing the latter to ruff and end-playing him instead of West.

CHAPTER FORTY-FOUR

"GOSH, EVE," said Joel, when she told him how she deliberately tried to hasten Bill's departure. "I don't reckon any of us men will ever be able to fathom the workings of a woman's mind."

Eve laughed softly. "None of us have very good minds," she said, "once we get to thinking about you men." She moved away from Joel, looking up at him, searching his face. "Well, darling, where do we go from here?"

"To the nearest church," said Joel. "There's one down in The Gap, isn't there?"

"Yes," said Eve. "An awfully cute little church. And I know the minister. He was saying just the other day that he certainly would like to do a little marrying for a change."

"Good!" said Joel. "We'll give him a job." Then he remembered something. "Oh, the devil! I forgot I let Bill have my car. He went to Asheville in my place."

"My car's out front!" said Eve. "Joel didn't seem to hear her. 'Say, Eve, didn't Bill stop to see you this afternoon?' he asked.

"Of course not," Eve said. "If he had I wouldn't have come up to play the rescue act. I thought he was tied up in the cabin, and that you'd gone on to Asheville without me."

"I see," said Joel. "Oh, well, I guess he heard the call of civilization, and went down to have a little more gaiety."

"Poor old Bill," said Eve, and Joel had to grin, because it had always before been "poor old Joel."

"He just isn't cut out for the life of a hermit. It's too bad you're not a writer, Joel. You could really write about the mountaineers."

"Well, I hope you don't mind me being what I am," said Joel. "Just a plain old cotton mill man."

"Of course I don't mind!" said Eve. "And you're not plain." She took Joel's face between her two hands, looked into his eyes. "Come to think of it, old darling, you're a much better looking man than that handsome writer cousin of yours."

"Thank you, ma'am," said Joel. "I reckon love, if you can say anything like that."

"Stop saying silly things, Joel," said Eve. "And kiss me!"

"Yes, ma'am!" said Joel. He kissed Eve, and quite satisfactorily.

"We'll fix this place up for our summer home," he was saying a moment later. "You can come up each summer for the teaching, if you like. And in the winter time we'll live in that old house of mine down near Ardendale." He paused, gave Eve an adoring look. "What gets me," he said, "is how I was ever able to see anyone in it but you."

"Do you think your Aunt Sallie will approve of me?" Eve asked. "She'd better, or I'll take her across my knee," said Joel. Then, grinning, he said: "Aunt Sallie will take you to her heart. Come to think of it, you're the sort of girl she's often described to me as the one she'd like for a niece. But, wait a minute! How about your mother? Maybe she'll kick up a rumpus over your falling for me instead of Bill."

"Nonsense!" said Eve. She smiled straight into Joel's eyes. "I'll tell you a little secret. Mother has been a little scared for some time lest I decide to be the wife of a man who writes books in which a spade is always called a spade. She'll be terribly happy because I'm marrying a man who's a lot like the one she married!"

"(Swell!" said Joel. "Then it looks as though we're about to have one of those rare happy endings that—" He stopped short. "What was that? It sounded like someone talking!"

Eve listened. "Maybe Bill's back," she said.

Joel caught her hand. They hurried out to the porch. They saw Joel's car just coming to a standstill. They could make out two forms sitting in the front seat.

"Hey, there, is that you, Bill?" Joel called.

"Nope," said an unfamiliar voice. "A man got out, walked to the porch. 'Are you Mr. Randall?' he asked."

"Yes," said Joel.

"Then here's a note for you," the man said. "And there's your car. I was told to deliver it to you—me and my assistant."

"But how are you going to get back?" said Joel.

"We got a motorcycle hooked on behind," the man replied. "We're from the Asheville-Buncombe garage."

"Oh, I see," said Joel. "Thanks a lot. Did a Mr. Latham send you up?"

"Yes, and he's the one who gave me the note." The man moved off into the shadows. "Well, we gotta be getting back now."

Eve touched Joel's arm. "Come on inside," she said,

"where you can read the note."

"Gosh," said Joel. "I hope nothing's happened to him."

Eve slipped her arm through his. "The old protective instinct again," she said. "Don't worry about Bill. Men like Bill always make out all right. Just read what he says."

In the cabin living room Joel ripped open the envelope. He read for a moment. And then he grinned. "Bill, always the unpredictable!" he said.

"What's he done now?" Eve wanted to know.

"Married," he said.

"What?"

"Yes, married to Rita Linwood," said Joel. "If at first you don't succeed, try, try again. It's a little poem my Aunt Sallie taught me."

"You mean he's married and gone away?" said Eve. "No," said Joel. "Wait, I'll read it to you." He did so.

"Rita and I have learned during the past week or so that we made a mistake. We're getting married this afternoon. We'll be at the Grove Park Inn. Come down tomorrow and lunch with us—and bring my other pair of pants. And listen, you dumb one where women are concerned, I've a sneaking idea that Eve loves you. Why not act like a real lover for once in your life—and find out?"

When Joel was through reading, Eve spoke.

"I'm glad," she said. "I've felt all along that they were really meant for each other."

"And what do you think about Bill's advice?" Joel said. "I mean acting like a real lover?"

"I think it's very sensible," said Eve. "Are you going to take it?"

"I am!" said Joel. "But right now we're going to drive down to see your mother. We'll leave your car up here, and you can get it tomorrow—after we come back from Asheville."

Eve sighed contentedly. "I think you're wonderful, Joel," she said. "You're such a combination of practicality and—and—"

"That's what I'm waiting to find out," said Eve. She lifted her mouth temptingly. "To see if you are as good at being romantic as you are at being practical."

"You—sweet—little—idiot!" said Joel.

And then he gave her a demonstration.

The clerk was described by his employer as having "very liberal views." On this occasion he and his customer discussed the Presidential campaign for a few minutes, when suddenly the latter leaned over and whispered:

"I'm going to tell you something very sensational, but keep it quiet. There will be a fire in the War Department within 24 hours."

The clerk was surprised, but didn't think much about the remark until the following day when the prediction came true. The clerk was scared stiff, feared trouble and decided to keep quiet until he had a chance to talk to his strange acquaintance again.

The retired Army captain didn't reappear for several weeks. Finally he came at night and, according to the florist, was dressed in "flashy new clothes."

But while affable and chatty, he would not discuss the fire or his mysterious prediction about it. Every time the clerk brought up the matter, the customer changed the subject.

More disturbed than ever, the clerk didn't know what to do and for weeks kept silent. But, finally, he decided that it was his patriotic duty to report his information and told the story to his boss who went to the Dies committee. The latter immediately put agents on the trail.

NAVY MYSTERY

Meanwhile, the Navy Department also is working on a mystery—which it is keeping very shush-shush.

A night guard making his rounds noticed a beam of light in a room where airplane files are kept. The guard quietly opened the door and found a man rummaging through the cabinets with a flashlight.

Like all government building guards, the guard was armed with a revolver and carried a whistle. But instead of seizing the intruder, the guard slammed the door and dashed all the way to the guard room on the first floor, and shouted to the officer on duty:

"There's someone upstairs looking at files with a flashlight! What shall I do?"

The officer and another guard rushed to the plane room, but it was empty. They found only some opened cabinets and papers scattered on the floor. A search of the huge building also proved fruitless. The mysterious prowler had vanished.

The next day a check showed that no files were missing. Officials say the intruder must have gained access to the building during the daytime and hid until dark. But that still leaves unexplained how he got in and out, since the building is closely guarded with admittance and exit only by special pass.

Germ Invasion

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

● A reader writes me in agonizing phraseology about boils that he has under the armpit and on the back of the neck. There must be many people who will sympathize with him.

The circumstance is quite peculiar. Theoretically, we would suppose that an infection would produce an immunity so that when it was healed up at one time in one spot, it would not be likely to recur. However, skin infections are subject to rules of their own. For instance, erysipelas, which is an infection of the skin, is more likely to come as a recurrence than if it hadn't happened at all. A person—and it is usually an elderly person who has erysipelas—will have an attack, completely recover, and then within a week or ten days have another one and go through the experience all over again.

Perhaps the infections in the skin which we call either boils or carbuncles, obey the same immunologic rules. Certain it is that especially in the armpit, boils will come in crops and keep pestering the poor victim indefinitely. The best advice that we can give at the present time is to use an immune sort of substance known as staphylococcus toxoid. This must be given by a doctor because it needs to be given hypodermically at intervals of about every four days. In such cases also the new chemical substances which have been so valuable in the treatment of pneumonia and other sorts of infections—sulfanilamide and sulfathiazole, etc.—should be used.

Hot Fomentation

The most comforting treatment for these recurrent boils is some form of hot fomentation. Treatment by suction cups is also very grateful. Curiously enough, surgical incision is not as likely to be as successful as in other forms of abscesses.

The modern doctor is in a much better position to take care of all kinds of infections than he was 10 or even 5 years ago. The value of the chemical substances which I just mentioned, in the treatment of invasion by certain germs, is undoubtedly very powerful. It was the dream of Doctor Ehrlich, who has been so interestingly celebrated by Dr. Paul de Kruif in his chapter called "The Magic Bullet" in MICROBE HUNTERS, that some chemicals would destroy the invading germs and leave the human tissues unaffected. That is why he called it "The Magic Bullet." He thought he could shoot it into the body and it would select the enemy germs, not destroying the others. About twenty years ago one of these magic bullets was invented, called "mercurochrome." It works very well on the surface of the body but it did not do what was expected of it when injected into the blood stream. The recent discovery of sulfanilamide and its cousins and its derivatives, has been far more successful in practice along that line.

A. M. M.:—"Is there any relief from itching piles except surgery?"

Answer:—Surgery by the injection treatment today is simple, short and effective. Nothing else takes its place.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendening has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Genuine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

USE YOUR OWN TRUMPS

ORDINARILY you do not wish to waste trumps of the longer trump holding in ruffing, as you would like to use those of the shorter holding opposite. But there are times when the smaller trumps of the master hand figure to be worthless for any other purpose, since one opponent is marked as holding a string of somewhat higher trumps. In those cases, your only chance to take tricks with the little cards is by ruffing leads of other suits.

Three club leads came in quick succession. South deciding to ruff the third. He counted up his tricks. Two in spades, two in hearts, two high ones in diamonds made six in eight. Three more were needed. One ruff of clubs and one of spades would make eight, and he ought to be able to get the ninth by making West lead trumps to him once at the end.

EVELESS EDEN

RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

CHAPTER FORTY-FOUR
"GOSH, EVE," said Joel, when she told him how she deliberately tried to hasten Bill's departure. "I don't reckon any of us men will ever be able to fathom the workings of a woman's mind."

Eve laughed softly. "None of us have very good minds," she said, "once we get to thinking about you men." She moved away from Joel, looking up at him, searching his face. "Well, darling, where do we go from here?"

"To the nearest church," said Joel. "There's one down in The Gap, isn't there?"

"Yes," said Eve. "An awfully cute little church. And I know the minister. He was saying just the other day that he certainly would like to do a little marrying for a change."

"Good!" said Joel. "We'll give him a job." Then he remembered something. "Oh, the devil! I forgot. I let Bill have my car. He went to Asheville in my place."

"My car's out front!" said Eve. Joel didn't seem to hear her. "Say, Eve, didn't Bill stop to see you this afternoon?" he asked.

"Of course not," Eve said. "If he had I wouldn't have come up to play the record he brought. He was tied up in the cabin, and that would've gone on to Asheville without me."

"I see," said Joel. "Oh, well, I guess he heard the call of civilization, and went down to have a little more gale."

"Poor old Bill," said Eve, and Joel had to grin, because it had always before been "poor old Joel."

"He just isn't cut out for the life of a hermit. It's too bad you're not a writer. Joel, you could really write about the mountaineers."

"Well, I hope you don't mind me being what I am," said Joel. "Just a plain old cotton mill man."

"Of course I don't mind!" said Eve. "And you're not plain." She took Joel's face between her two hands, looked into his eyes. "Come to think of it, old darling, you're a much better looking man than that handsome writer cousin of yours."

"Thank you, ma'am," said Joel. "I reckon love shore nuff must be blind, honey, if you can say anything like that."

"Stop saying silly things, Joel," said Eve. "And kiss me!"

"Yes, ma'am," said Joel. He kissed Eve, and quite satisfactorily.

"We'll fix this place up for our summer home," he was saying a moment later. "You can come up each summer for the teaching, if you like. And in the winter time we'll live in that old house of mine down near Asheville." He paused, gave Eve an adoring look. "What gets me," he said, "is how I was ever able to see anyone in it but you."

"Do you think your Aunt Sallie will approve of me?" Eve asked.

"She'd better, or I'll take her across my knee," said Joel. Then, grinning, he said: "Aunt Sallie will take you to her heart. Come to think of it, you're the sort of girl she's often described to me as the one she'd like for a niece. But, wait a minute! How about your mother? Maybe she'll kick up a rumpus over you falling for me instead of Bill."

"Nonsense!" said Eve. She smiled straight into Joel's eyes. "I'll tell you a little secret. Mother has been a little scared for some time lest I decide to be the wife of a man who writes books in which a spade is always called a spade. She'll be terribly happy because I'm marrying a man who's a lot like the one she married!"

"Swell!" said Joel. "Then it looks as though we're about to have one of those rare happy endings that—" He stopped short. "What was that? It sounded like someone talking!"

Eve listened. "Maybe Bill's back," she said.

Joel caught her hand. They hurried out to the porch. They saw Joel's car just coming to a standstill. They could make out two forms sitting in the front seat.

"Hey, there, is that you, Bill?" Joel called.

"Nope," said an unfamiliar voice. A man got out, walked to the porch. "Are you Mr. Randall?" he asked.

"Yes," said Joel.

"Then here's a note for you," the man said. "And there's your car. I was told to deliver it to you—me and my assistant."

"But how are you going to get back?" said Joel.

"We got a motorcycle hooked on behind," the man replied. "We're from the Asheville-Buncombe garage."

"Oh, I see," said Joel. "Thanks a lot. Did a Mr. Latham send you up?"

"Yes, and he's the one who gave me the note. The man moved off into the shadows. "Well, we gotta be getting back now."

Eve touched Joel's arm. "Come on inside," she said,

Gathering At Ashbrook Home Honors Woman, 90

Mrs. Lyda Layton Celebrates Birthday

Mrs. Lyda B. Layton, 273 South Skidmore Street, Columbus, formerly of Yellowbud, celebrated her ninetieth birthday anniversary Friday as guest of honor at a luncheon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Price Ashbrook, Route 104, near Yellowbud. This is the former home of Mrs. Layton's sister, the late Mrs. Isaac Lutz, and has been the scene of family gatherings for many years. Mr. and Mrs. James R. Tootle of near Chillicothe assisted in the entertainment of the guests who gathered at 12:30 p. m. for the cooperative affair. Mrs. Layton joined Mr. and Mrs. Ashbrook and Mr. and Mrs. Tootle in receiving the guests.

A huge bouquet of red roses and a large, beautifully birthday cake were center decorations of the table. Seated with Mrs. Layton were two of her nieces, Mrs. Clark Beale of Mt. Sterling and Mrs. W. K. Orr of Kingston.

Another lovely bouquet of red roses, the gift of another niece, Mrs. Ira L. May, was on the piano in the music room.

At the close of the luncheon, the guest of honor was the recipient of many lovely gifts, among them being a new radio which was presented by a great niece, Mrs. Paul A. Johnson, in behalf of the nieces and nephews in attendance.

Mrs. Layton pleased the group by reciting a poem on Ohio which she had just recently memorized.

When open house was held at the Ashbrook home from 2 until 4 p. m. Mrs. F. T. Marr, Mrs. Ashbrook, Mrs. Tootle and Mrs. Johnson presided at the tea table.

A large group of friends and acquaintances from the surrounding community called. A musical program was presented by Mrs. H. Merryman and son, William, of Columbus, at the two pianos in the music room.

Guests attending from Circleville were Mr. and Mrs. Leslie D. May, Miss Mary K. May, the Misses Sally and Adelaide May, Mrs. Percy May, Miss Alice A. May, Mr. and Mrs. Paul A. Johnson and daughter, Martha Sue.

To apply for membership in the Ford Good Drivers' League and become eligible for the League safe driving contests, each boy and girl must fill out a membership card obtained from any Ford dealer.

Rules for the contest are: Any boy or girl a member of a family employed in the Ford plant or selling Ford automobile parts cannot enter the contest. Each contestant must have residence in the United States and has been qualified legally and authorized to drive a car in his or her own state. No person having reached his nineteenth birthday may enter the contest.

As soon as the enrollment is accepted by the League, each member will receive a membership card and button together with the book, "How To Become A Skilled Driver," by Ray W. Sherman.

STARS SAY—

For Saturday, March 29
A DAY of contradictory and confusing conditions, with much of major importance moving under high pressure and with objectives of major significance. Nevertheless if such enterprise and initiative be carried to excess there may be a blowout or some form of defeat.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a very lively and productive year with events moving swiftly, energetically and under high tension. But carried to excess, initiative and enterprise may swing into defeatist, channels, especially through reckless, impulsive and turbulent conduct.

A child born on this day should have practical talents, with much versatility and constructive or inventive ability. But its impetuosity, quarrelsomeness, over-zealous or indulgent methods may prove its undoing.

For Sunday, March 30
SUNDAY'S horoscope is a very promising one, not only for "cashing in" on past performances, with industry, diligence, and fidelity to duty and obligations finding suitable and enduring rewards, but new factors may arise to open gateways of achievement, progress and perhaps startling recognition.

Those whose birthday it is are assured of a year of opportunity for putting on an enduring basis the fortunes and security of the future, owing to recognition of past labors and steadfastness as well as because of the sudden advent of fresh openings probably born on some novel ideas or innovations of a scientific nature.

A child born on this day will be exceptionally clever, versatile, inventive with far scope of vision and much ingenuity.

WATCH THE COMITADJI

The thing to watch in the hectic Yugoslav picture is not only the Serb peasants, but the "comitadjii", bandit warriors who have struck terror into the hearts of corrupt Balkan politicians for half a century.

Literally translated, a Comitadjii is a "committee of one" who points himself to rectify the wrongs of his country or his community. Banded together into "Comitadjii", they played a potent role in the last war. And if the famed British military intelligence was up to its old standards, the Comitadjii of south Serbia would have taken measures into their own hands regarding the Cvetkovitch Cabinet long before it signed the Axis pact.

During those rare periods of Balkan peace, Comitadjii act as south European versions of Robin Hood, burning the hay stacks of domineering politicians or sometimes treating them to a baptism of bullets, but at the other times occupying relatively respectable positions in the community.

Near the Albanian-Montenegrin border, where one of the Merry-Go-Rounders was stationed after the Armistice, Serbian officials tearfully sought transportation in the trucks of American relief workers whenever they had to travel through the countryside. And at night, Serbian gendarmes, stationed out on the plains, locked themselves behind a combination of barbed-wire entanglements, mud-walls and blockades of pointed timbers in fear of a dread Comitadjii raid.

Many of the Comitadjii became national heroes, probably the foremost being Kosto Petchanatz, whose name has been featured in the cable dispatches from Belgrade this week. Kosto's last name, Petchanatz, means the "man from Petch", and was given him after he captured the Albanian-Montenegrin city of Petch from the Austrians in 1918.

Serbian legend has it that he accomplished this capture with only seven armed men. The story, of course, has not diminished in the telling. What happened was that Kosto advanced upon the city with a relatively small band of men, but stationed in the underbrush on each side of the road a horde of unarmed peasants whose hoses and pitchforks protruded as if they were weapons.

Then, calling the Austrian command out of the city, Kosto demanded his immediate surrender, explaining that he had a large army advancing behind but wanted to spare civilian lives in the city. So the Austrians, uncertain as to what was happening on the remainder of the then crumbling war front, evacuated the city.

Cables from Belgrade report that Kosto Petchanatz is now mobilizing a Comitadjii army to do battle against both the Nazis and the Belgrade government.

DIZZY QUARTERS

The tremendous expansion of defense activities the last few months has sprawled already overblown government offices in Washington into some unusual places.

An old skating rink has been leased to house 200 Alien Registration employees; a department store warehouse, formerly filled with furniture, now quarters 2,300 War Department and Census clerks; and a chain grocery warehouse was cleared of canned goods and banana supplies to make room for 700 other War Department employees.

The mass influx of government workers is much bigger than during the preparedness stage of the World War. From 1916 to 1917, federal employment in the Capital rose from 35,477 to 41,417—approximately 6,000. Since last May the increase has been more than quadruple this amount, jumping from 130,937 to over 155,000. This is more than double the 10,000 increase estimated by the Civil Service Commission. And scores of new workers are being added to the rolls daily.

One reason for the crowded office conditions is the policy of erecting only permanent government buildings in Washington. During the World War, the city was plastered with many unsightly temporary barrack-like structures. Under the rule laid down by the late Treasury Secretary Andrew Mellon such "hot-dog stands", as they were known, were banned.

A relative may act as a witness to one securing United States citizenship papers only if the court approves.

Ashville High School Boys Honored At Parent, Teacher Banquet

R. H. SCANLAND SPEAKS

Belt Buckles Given To Two Seniors; Warren Swisher Named Captain

By S. D. Fridley
Ashville, Phone 79

An estimated 200 persons enjoyed the annual basketball banquet at the school auditorium Friday night. Sponsored by the Parent-Teacher Association, the splendid dinner was prepared and served by the ladies of that organization. Serving began at about 6:45 when all guests were assembled.

The honor guests—the basketball players of both Varsity and Reserve teams, the coach, the manager and the head cheerleader—were seated in the center of the banquet room.

Reserve players were given numerals instead of letters, the Varsity players were awarded letters with the exception of the two Senior members, Cloud and Swisher who were presented belt buckles. Manager Hoover, besides winning his letter, was given a sweater by the members of the teams in appreciation of his loyalty during the season.

The main speech of the evening was made by R. H. Scanland, field scout executive of the Central Ohio Area, who gave examples of great players and coaches and told what athletics means to youngsters.

Other short talks were made by Warren Swisher, newly elected captain of the team, and Ralph Swayer, head cheerleader. C. A. Higley, school superintendent, was the toastmaster.

Dancing to music by an orchestra from Capital University, and cards completed the evening's entertainment, and thus the Basketball Banquet for 1941 at Ashville High School became history.

"Dog gone it" is right. The official county dog dealer made a raid on our dog free-of-cost stock Friday and got some of our best ones already sold but not delivered. Not aware that we dealt in free-cost ones only a party wanted to sell us what they thought was a real one for $15. Couldn't make a deal for that sort. Town's full of "good ones" for nothing. We actually did have a stray play pup placed for a good home in the country but it went out with the "dog man" without our consent. Can't have our good dog business interfered with like this anymore and we'll be seeing the mayor if something can be done about it. These dog loads before they leave the village, must be inspected. Yes, we'll take the job.

Some of our soldier boys in different locations according to word coming from them, may spend their Easter vacation at home. Lee Sherman in camp and school out at Rantoul, Illinois, says he has started in on a 22 week course of instruction and has now two weeks of it completed. Byron Gulick is in school down in Oklahoma and is not expected home and Bill Bowers at Shelby may come home—not certain yet.

When getting around to it, with present work completed, Don Campbell will have employment at the Cooper gas station, Main Street.

STAR SAYS—

For Saturday, March 29
A DAY of contradictory and confusing conditions, with much of major importance moving under high pressure and with objectives of major significance. Nevertheless if such enterprise and initiative be carried to excess there may be a blowout or some form of defeat.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a very lively and productive year with events moving swiftly, energetically and under high tension. But carried to excess, initiative and enterprise may swing into defeatist channels, especially through reckless, impulsive and turbulent conduct.

A child born on this day should have practical talents, with much versatility and constructive or inventive ability. But its impetuous, quarrelsome, over-zealous or indulgent methods may prove its undoing.

For Sunday, March 30
SUNDAY'S horoscope is a very promising one, not only for "cashing in" on past performances, with industry, diligence, and fidelity to duty and obligations finding suitable and enduring rewards, but new factors may arise to open gateways of achievement, progress and perhaps startling recognition.

Those whose birthday it is are assured of a year of opportunity for putting on an enduring basis the fortunes and security of the future, owing to recognition of past labors and steadfastness as well as because of the sudden advent of fresh openings probably born on some novel ideas or innovations of a scientific nature.

A child born on this day will be exceptionally clever, versatile, inventive with far scope of vision and much ingenuity.

Washington Merry-Go Round

So far, only upshot of the incident is that the bumbling guard has been fired.

WATCH THE COMITADJI

The thing to watch in the hectic Yugoslav picture is not only the Serb peasants, but the "comitadjii", bandit warriors who have struck terror into the hearts of corrupt Balkan politicians for half a century.

Literally translated, a Comitadjii is a "committee of one" who points himself to rectify the wrongs of his country or his community. Banded together into "Comitadjii", they played a potent role in the last war. And if the famed British military intelligence was up to its old standards, the Comitadjii of south Serbia would have taken measures into their own hands regarding the Cvetkovich Cabinet long before it signed the Axis pact.

During those rare periods of Balkan peace, Comitadjii act as south European versions of Robin Hood, burning the hay stacks of domineering politicians or sometimes treating them to a baptism of bullets, but at the other times occupying relatively respectable positions in the community.

Near the Albanian-Montenegrin border, where one of the Merry-Go-Rounders was stationed after the Armistice, Serbian officials tearfully sought transportation in the trucks of American relief workers whenever they had to travel through the countryside.

At night, Serbian gendarmes, stationed out on the plains, locked themselves behind combination of barbed-wire entanglements, mud-walls and blockades of pointed timbers in fear of a dread Comitadjii raid.

Many of the Comitadjii became national heroes, probably the foremost being Kosto Petchanatz, whose name has been featured in the cable dispatches from Belgrade this week.

Kosto's last name, Petchanatz, means the "man from Petch", and was given him after he captured the Albanian-Montenegrin city of Petch from the Austrians in 1918.

Serbian legend has it that he accomplished this capture with only seven armed men. The story, of course, has not diminished in the telling. What happened was that Kosto advanced upon the city with a relatively small band of men, but stationed in the underbrush on each side of the road a horde of unarmed peasants whose hoses and pitchforks protruded as if they were weapons.

Then, calling the Austrian command out of the city, Kosto demanding his immediate surrender, explaining that he had a large army advancing behind but wanted to spare civilian lives in the city. So the Austrians, uncertain as to what was happening on the remainder of the then crumbling war front, evacuated the city.

Cables from Belgrade report that Kosto Petchanatz is now mobilizing a Comitadjii army to do battle against both the Nazis and the Belgrade government.

DIZZY QUARTERS

The tremendous expansion of defense activities the last few months has sprawled already overblown government offices in Washington into some unusual places.

An old skating rink has been leased to house 200 Alien Registration employees; a department store warehouse, formerly filled with furniture, now quarters 2,300 War Department and Census clerks; and a chain grocery warehouse was cleared of canned goods and banana supplies to make room for 700 other War Department employees.

The mass influx of government workers is much bigger than during the preparedness stage of the World War. From 1916 to 1917, federal employment in the Capital rose from 35,477 to 41,417—approximately 6,000. Since last May the increase has been more than quadruple this amount, jumping from 130,937 to over 155,000. This is more than double the 10,000 increase estimated by the Civil Service Commission. And scores of new workers are being added to the rolls daily.

One reason for the crowded office conditions is the policy of erecting only permanent government buildings in Washington. During the World War, the city was pestered with many unsightly temporary barrack-like structures. Under the rule laid down by the late Treasury Secretary Andrew Mellon such "hot-dog stands", as they were known, were banned.

PICKAWAY COUNTY RANKS HIGH IN STATE 4-H CLUB ACTIVITIES

85.9 PERCENT OF YOUNGSTERS COMPLETE TASK

District In Upper Third Among Ohio Groups, Says State Report

Pickaway County ranks high in 4-H club activity as compared with other counties in the state, a report released from the State 4-H Club Service revealed Saturday.

Of the 526 4-H Club members in the county, 452 or 85.9 percent of them completed projects during 1940, placing the county in the upper third in the state.

The percentage of rural boys and girls enrolled in 4-H Club work during 1940 was 124 and the number enrolled under the supervision of one county agent was 526 while the average for the state was 378.

Seventy-two percent of the club members in the county live on farms and 28 percent in villages or in Circleville, the report showed. For the 38 4-H Clubs there were 47 advisers last year, the percentage being higher than the state average.

Dollars for each member finishing his project in 1940 was $1.49 for Pickaway County as compared with the state average of $1.08.

Average number of months that clubs were active in Pickaway County was seven, only five other counties in the state having a higher figure.

Club activity in 1941 should be even better than it was in 1940, County Agent F. K. Blair has reported, following his meeting with 4-H Club leaders Wednesday night. Beef Club members already have forty head of cattle for the livestock show and sale next fall. Club enrollment is expected to increase this year, with clubs throughout the county holding organization meetings within the next few weeks and planning projects for the summer.

In its program of communicable disease control, the health office quarantined one case of scarlet fever, Clara Frances Mounts, 6, Jackson Township, and made a daily inspection of the children exposed in the school for one week. No other cases developed. The quarantine was removed Friday, and the county is now free from quarantine for any disease.

During the month, Dr. Blackburn visited all the schools in the county and reported sanitary conditions good. Eight field visits were made to typhoid suspects, scarlet fever suspects and mumps cases. Several scabies cases were investigated and the children excluded from school until cured.

Eight blood tests were made during March, two were negative, and six positive. Positive cases were admitted to medical service and turned over to private physicians for treatment.

A rabid dog in Darby Township was responsible for two men having to take anti-rabies treatments.

Miss Margaret Hunsicker, county health nurse, inspected seventy-five students five times for scarlet fever. She made eight home visits and 49 inspections for pediculosis. Mother's certificates were delivered to 18 mothers in the county.

In the field of infant hygiene, the health nurse made 14 home visits and in the preschool field 15 home visits. She held 28 conferences during the month and made one talk at a Parent-Teacher's meeting.

Mainly About People

ONE MINUTE PULPIT

For the love of money is the root of all evil: which while some coveted after, they have erred from the faith, and pierced themselves through with many sorrows.—1 Timothy 6:10.

A son was born last Monday in Newark City Hospital to Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Mack of that city. Mr. Mack is a former resident of Circleville.

Pat J. Kirwin of Columbus, formerly of Circleville, has been called up for a year of training in the Army. Kirwin, who is assistant to the alumni secretary at Ohio State University, reports Monday at Fort Hayes for induction.

Private Walter Pickel of the U. S. Army has been removed to the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Pickel, 223 East Mound Street, from Toledo Hospital where he underwent an appendicitis operation last week. He is making steady improvement.

C. Dee Early, manager of the Citizens Telephone company, has returned to his home in Circleville after a week's business trip to Fort Wayne, Ind.

William Ashbrook Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Price Ashbrook of near Yellowbud, is a medical patient in Mt. Carmel Hospital, Columbus.

girls get married and still play sweet youngsters getting a few kisses per picture when the public knows they get dozens in real life?" They fret too friendly. Marriage no longer horrifies the majority of the public. Besides, haven't they been training us for years?

We are accustomed to mothers of long-legged children playing "girls," just as we, too, long have watched our baby-buntings exhibit baby socks; flat shoes manipulated in a purposely awkward rockaway teetering; dresses above fat knees; and wide eyes as they made speeches, interspersed with little sucked-in breaths of childishness.

In short, we have been made to feel the little moppets had just poured their oatmeal over Nurse's head, then walked onto the set when actually they were in the algebra stage. In this day, fans don't desert their favorites just because they don't have a few orange buds.

Deanna Durbin will marry Vaughn Paul in a formal April wedding, with Deanna the typical bride. A clench for her after years of strutting everything from ermine-trimmed velvet to stiff metallic brocades. And, by cracky, when she returns from her honeymoon, they still can cast her as a school girl, for my money.

Deanna first planned to wed in June but now has set the big date for April 18—her parents' 33rd wedding anniversary.

Judy's Wedding

Possibly Judy also will have a typical wedding. More likely, she will leap as is her nature. When only three years old she leaped out on a stage, against her vaudeville actor father's orders and sang "Jingle Bells" five times. Accepted then as a performer, she later leaped onto the stage when she heard her music cue, passing up entirely the ruffled costume and pants (all made in one piece) which her mother was holding in pressed readiness in the wings. And I'll bet she never had heard of Sally Rand.

She has leaped—OFF the stage this time, because of an audience's cruel titters; leaped even from a balcony-tossed orange.

So you see, Judy is no product of a marshmallow-coated luxury. She'll do all right for herself. She already has. Doesn't she have a charm bracelet from Clark Gable? What is better than that, I ask you? Except maybe a wedding ring. And she will have that before long. Both she and Deanna. And then our favorite "kiddies" will be our favorite go-cart brides.

certed action to be applied if necessary. Foreign Minister Momcilo Ninic, meanwhile, summoned the German and Italian ministers to his office and handed them formal apologies for anti-axis demonstrations, which drew a sharp protest from Berlin yesterday.

Ninic promised that all damage to axis property in Belgrade and elsewhere would be repaired by Yugoslavia.

Meanwhile, young King Peter asked the European belligerents to grant safe conduct to Yugoslavia via to his mother, Queen Mother Maria, and his two brothers, who are in England.

Explosion Feared

Authorities hastened to bring Yugoslavian armed strength to its peak. Many of the soldiers already under arms have taken up defensive battle stations along the nation's frontiers. Fears spread of a possible explosion this week end, possibly even within a few hours.

(Editor's Note: A Reuters (British) dispatch from Belgrade said German Minister Viktor Von Heeren has been recalled from Belgrade to Berlin. (This indicated Germany may be preparing to rupture diplomatic relations with Yugoslavia as a prelude to possible "drastic developments" which Berlin threatened yesterday unless Yugoslavia complies with Nazi demands.)

(Germany is insisting on clear-cut and unequivocal Yugoslavian acceptance of the tripartite pact.)

According to latest reports in Belgrade, the nation's military forces now have been almost completely mobilized.

Coincident with the advices were revived reports that Turkey has proposed a pact of mutual assistance with Yugoslavia.

Momcilo Ninic, new Yugoslavian foreign minister, was reliably reported seeking the aid of Premier Mussolini—an old personal friend—to work out a satisfactory formula that would prevent Germany from launching an attack.

The formula he seeks, it was stated, would attempt to reconcile the commitments to the axis by the fallen Cvetkovic government with the outspoken demands of the Serbians for complete neutrality and full preservation of Yugoslavian liberty and integrity.

Germans Fleeing

Meanwhile, thousands of Germans in Yugoslavia, ordered to leave the country by Nazi officials, were fleeing or preparing to depart. A Danube River steamer was being outfitted to evacuate German women and children from Belgrade tomorrow or Monday.

Fresh internal disruptions threatened the new government as Yugoslav troops, with tanks and machine guns, occupied Belgrade's public squares last night, at the company's Cambria plant, at Johnstown. Although Milwaukee Allis-Chalmers officials said the plant resumed operations yesterday, their figures on the number of men working did not agree with estimates made by union officials. A meeting of union members was scheduled for today.

Defense officials also were watching the negotiations between the CIO's United Mine Workers and soft coal operators in New York. Unless an agreement is reached by Monday midnight, when the present wage contract expires, a shutdown of most of the country's bituminous coal mines is threatened. There is only approximately a 30-day supply of coal above the ground, thereby blocking an effort by 30,000 Communists to converge on the center of the city from the outskirts.

The Communists shouted for Yugoslav cooperation with Soviet Russia, defying a government ban on demonstrations. The parade was broken up without bloodshed.

Despite pressure from the United States, Britain, Russia, Turkey and Greece, the Simovic government was stated officially to have assured the axis powers that the Berlin-Rome-Tokyo pact, and Yugoslavia's adherence to it, would be observed in principle.

This, however, failed to satisfy German demands for unconditional Yugoslavian "solidarity" with the axis powers.

German news agency (DNE) which said a crowd in the Yugoslav capital booed German Minister Viktor Von Heeren yesterday when he attended church ceremonies on the occasion of King Peter's formal accession to the Yugoslavian throne.

Diplomatic activity between Berlin and Belgrade continued at a furious pace.

If it is deemed necessary, Von Heeren will be instructed to fly back to Berlin to make a personal report on the situation.

But no matter what happens, German authorities declared, only two alternatives are open to the Yugoslavian government.

The first is unconditional Yugoslavian acknowledgment of its adherence to the tripartite pact. The second is an open admission by Belgrade that Yugoslavia is repudiating the pact.

"Blitz" Must Strike

If Yugoslavia adopts the second course, German officials promised, the "blitz" then will be "bound to strike."

(Editor's Note: An Exchange Telegraph (British) dispatch from Zurich, Switzerland, said Chancellor Hitler, Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop, Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering and Gen. Wilhelm Keitel considered the situation at a special meeting.

(According to this report they decided to give Yugoslavia three days to accept the axis-Japanese alliance. The dispatch said an immediate Yugoslavian decision was deemed necessary to avoid upsetting Germany's military preparations in Bulgaria for a blow against Greece.)

According to DNE, the new Belgrade government felt itself unable to reply to the German demands until it has achieved "clarification of the domestic and foreign situation."

An internal split in the Yugoslav regime was reported developing already. DNE said political circles were discussing whether Croat representatives could remain in the cabinet formed by Premier Gen. Dusan Simovic.

The agency said the Croats might bolt the cabinet unless the government recognizes validity of the Croat autonomy agreement reached by former Premier Dragisa Cvetkovic and Vice Premier Vladimir Macek.

Informed Berlin quarters predicted that the climax of the gathering German-Yugoslav crisis may burst wide open this week end.

With equal impatience German authorities awaited Yugoslavia's

QUESTION: I have had little success in trying to grow paper white narcissus in pebbles and water. I have healthy looking plants but they do not blossom. Just when the bud is about to open, it turns brown and dries up and the leaves begin to wilt. Can you tell me what causes this? It is not lack of water. J. H. J., Wheeling, W. Va.

ANSWER: Although paper white narcissus that have not been properly handled in curing and shipping act like this, it is more likely that gas in the atmosphere from the gas stove, gas log, or furnace is the cause of the trouble. Paper white narcissus are one of the most susceptible plants to gas injury. There is, of course, nothing you can do for this except try to grow them in the rooms as far away from gas as possible.

QUESTION: In what way is soil improved by digging coal ashes into it? J. H. J., Wheeling, W. Va.

ANSWER: Coal ashes loosen heavy clay soils. Although they have no fertilizing value whatsoever, if a two to four inch layer of coal ashes is thoroughly mixed with the top foot of soil it will greatly improve its ability to grow plants. Of course, adequate plant food should be provided by the

ROUGH WEATHER SENDS F. D. R.'S BOAT TO HARBOR

ABOARD U. S. S. BENSON, March 29—Prospects of rough weather impelled President Roosevelt and his fishing party of close friends, including some cabinet members, to return to Port Everglades, Fla., harbor early today.

The yacht Potomac and the accompanying destroyer Benson made the Friday night run from north of the Bahamas in order to assure a comfortable passage for the group and to guarantee the President's arrival on the Florida coast for his radio address to Jackson Day dinners being held tonight throughout the country.

Arrival at Port Everglades completed a leisurely circle of the North Bahama Cays, covering only 400 miles in seven days with nightly anchorages. The decision to return to Florida was made last night after receipt of adverse weather predictions with the memories of last Wednesday buffeting off Grand Bahama Island in a gale and rough seas still fresh.

WHEN "Nice Girl" hits the Grand screen on Sunday, it will be the talk of the town. Franchot Tone and Robert Stack affords Deanna Durbin her finest film to date. application of a complete commercial fertilizer with an analysis of 4-12-4. Use about three pounds to 100 square feet, spading into the soil with the ashes. I further recommend that some organic matter be added into the form of peat moss, rotted leaves, rotted manure or similar material. Up to a two-inch layer of this may be mixed with the soil.

QUESTION: I have a question in connection with your recommendations for a cold frame. Should it be placed on the east side of the house during the early season to start annuals and should it be shaded later in the year to start perennials? Should the two-inch layer of sand and peat moss which you recommended be placed on top of the six-inch layer of soil. C. E. W., Akron.

ANSWER: I have had very satisfactory results with cold frames facing east, south, or west for growing seedlings in the spring or other plants throughout the season. If these same frames are to be used for rooting cuttings during the summer or for evergreen cuttings during the winter, they may be shaded with a lath shade consisting of common building laths nailed to side strips, the laths the width of one lath apart. In sowing seedlings directly in the cold frame, I put the two-inch layer of sand and peat moss on top of the soil so that the seed bed inside the frame is two inches above the outside soil.

QUESTION: Would you please tell me what will kill a big elm tree without girdling it? It is about three feet through with a very large spread of branches. I want to remove it but it is right where I cannot cut it down. A. E. M., Wooster.

ANSWER: Although plants can be killed by the application of poisons such as sodium arsenite and sodium chlorate, they would also kill all other plants nearby and so have no advantage over girdling. Besides, you would still have the tree to cut down. I recommend that you completely girdle the tree sometime this spring, cutting away two or three inches of the bark down into the wood. In this way the tree will leaf out and be alive most of the summer. Since none of the manufactured food will be getting back to the roots

Pickaway County ranks high in 4-H club activity as compared with other counties in the state, a report released from the State 4-H Club Service revealed Saturday.

Of the 526 4-H Club members in the county, 452 or 85.9 percent of them completed projects during 1940, placing the county in the upper third in the state.

TWO YOUTHFUL MOVIE COLONY STARS TO WED

girls get married and still play sweet youngsters getting a few kisses per picture when the public knows they get dozens in real life? They fret too frenziedly. Marriage no longer horrifies the majority of the public. Besides, haven't they been training us for years?

We are accustomed to mothers of long-legged children playing "girls," just as we, too, long have watched our baby-buntings exhibit baby socks; flat shoes manipulated in a purposely awkward rockabye teetering; dresses above fat knees; and wide eyes as they made speeches, interspersed with little sucked-in breaths of childishness.

In short, we have been made to feel the little moppets had just poured their oatmeal over Nurse's head, then walked onto the set when actually they were in the algebra stage. In this day, fans don't desert their favorites just because they don't a few orange buds.

Deanna Durbin will marry Vaughn Paul in a formal April wedding, with Deanna the typical bride. A cinch for her after years of strutting everything from ermine-trimmed velvet to stiff metallic brocades. And, by cracky, when she returns from her honeymoon, they still can cast her as a school girl, for my money.

Deanna first planned to wed in June but now has set the big date for April 18—her parents' 33rd wedding anniversary.

Judy's Wedding

Possibly Judy also will have a typical wedding. More likely, she will leap as is her nature. When only three years old she leaped out on a stage, against her vaudeville actor father's orders and sang "Jingle Bells" five times.

Accepted then as a performer, she later leaped onto the stage when she heard her music cue, passing up entirely the ruffled costume and pants (all made in one piece) which her mother was holding in pressed readiness in the wings. And I'll bet she never had heard of Sally Rand.

She has leaped—OFF the stage this time, because of an audience's cruel titters; leaped even from a balcony-tossed orange.

So you see, Judy is no product of marshmallow-coated luxury. She'll do all right for herself. She already has. Doesn't she have a charm bracelet from Clark Gable? What is better than that, I ask you? Except maybe a wedding ring. And she will have that before long. Both she and Deanna. And then our favorite "kiddies" will be our favorite go-cart brides.

TAKEN TO MANSFIELD

Theodore Riffin, Williamsport, sentenced to one to three years in Ohio State Reformatory by Common Pleas Judge Meeker Terwilliger for violating his parole by driving an automobile with fictitious license plates, was taken to Mansfield Saturday by Deputy Sheriff Bryan Custer.

Pretty Girls, Outlaws And Music On Film Bills

GENE Autry is the star of "Ride Tenderfoot Ride" which opens its run Sunday at the Circle Theatre with Jerry Colonna in "Melody and Moonlight".

FROM the colorful Rio Grande storms the most rousing epic of high adventure since "Viva Villa!" Wallace Beery, Lionel Barrymore, Laraine Day, Ronald Reagan in "The Bad Man," roaring drama of Pancho Lopez, the most picturesque desperado who ever rode for shining gold, for nights of riotous laughter and the lips of lovely women. Based on the long-run stage success, and directed by Richard Thorpe, the spectacular new picture opens Sunday on the Cliftona screen for a three day engagement.

WHEN "Nice Girl" hits the Grand screen on Sunday, it will be the talk of the town. Franchot Tone and Robert Stack affords Deanna Durbin her finest film to date. "Nice Girl" is a story of a most different type... A little risqué, but still a role which shoves Deanna into beautiful womanhood. Walter Brennan supplies much of the comedy angle.

certed action to be applied if necessary."

Foreign Minister Momcilo Nincic, meanwhile, summoned the German and Italian ministers to his office and handed them formal apologies for anti-axis demonstrations, which drew a sharp protest from Berlin yesterday.

Nincic promised that all damage to axis property in Belgrade and elsewhere would be repaired by Yugoslavia.

Meanwhile, young King Peter asked the European belligerents to grant safe conduct to Yugoslavia to his mother, Queen Mother Maria, and his two brothers, who are in England.

Explosion Feared

Authorities hastened to bring Yugoslavian armed strength to its peak. Many of the soldiers already under arms have taken up defensive battle stations along the nation's frontiers. Fears spread of a possible explosion this week end, possibly even within a few hours.

(Editor's Note: A Reuters (British) dispatch from Belgrade said German Minister Viktor Von Heeren has been recalled from Belgrade to Berlin.

(This indicated Germany may be preparing to rupture diplomatic relations with Yugoslavia as a prelude to possible "drastic developments" which Berlin threatened yesterday unless Yugoslavia complies with Nazi demands.

(Germany is insisting on clear-cut and unequivocal Yugoslavian acceptance of the tripartite pact.)

According to latest reports in Belgrade, the nation's military forces now have been almost completely mobilized.

Coincident with the advice were revived reports that Turkey has proposed a pact of mutual assistance with Yugoslavia.

Momcilo Nincic, new Yugoslavian foreign minister, was reliably reported seeking the aid of Premier Mussolini—an old personal friend—to work out a satisfactory formula that would prevent Germany from launching an attack.

The formula he seeks, it was stated, would attempt to reconcile the commitments to the axis by the fallen Cvetkovic government with the outspoken demands of the Serbians for complete neutrality and full preservation of Yugoslavian liberty and integrity.

Germans Fleeing

Meanwhile, thousands of Germans in Yugoslavia, ordered to leave the country by Nazi officials, were fleeing or preparing to depart. A Danube River steamer was being outfitted to evacuate German women and children from Belgrade tomorrow or Monday.

Fresh internal disruptions threatened the new government as Yugoslav troops, with tanks and machine guns, occupied Belgrade's public squares last night.

at the company's Cambria plant, at Johnstown.

Although Milwaukee Allis-Chalmers officials said the plant resumed operations yesterday, their figures on the number of men working did not agree with estimates made by union officials. A meeting of union members was scheduled for today.

Defense officials also were watching the negotiations between the CIO's United Mine Workers and soft coal operators in New York. Unless an agreement is reached by Monday midnight, when the present wage contract expires, a shutdown of most of the country's bituminous coal mines is threatened. There is only approximately a 30-day supply of coal above the ground.

thereby blocking an effort by 30,000 Communists to converge on the center of the city from the outskirts.

The Communists shouted for Yugoslav cooperation with Soviet Russia, defying a government ban on demonstrations. The parade was broken up without bloodshed.

Despite pressure from the United States, Britain, Russia, Turkey and Greece, the Simovic government was stated officially to have assured the axis powers that the Berlin-Rome-Tokyo pact, and Yugoslavia's adherence to it, would be observed in principle.

This however, failed to satisfy German demands for unconditional Yugoslavian "solidarity" with the axis powers.

German news agency (DNE) which said a crowd in the Yugoslav capital booed German Minister Viktor Von Heeren yesterday when he attended church ceremonies on the occasion of King Peter's formal accession to the Yugoslavian throne.

Diplomatic activity between Berlin and Belgrade continued at a furious pace.

If it is deemed necessary, Von Heeren will be instructed to fly back to Berlin to make a personal report on the situation.

But no matter what happens, German authorities declared, only two alternatives are open to the Yugoslavian government.

The first is unconditional Yugoslavian acknowledgement of its adherence to the tripartite pact. The second is an open admission by Belgrade that Yugoslavia is repudiating the pact.

"Blitz" Must Strike

If Yugoslavia adopts the second course, German officials promised, the "blitz" then will be "bound to strike."

(Editor's Note: An Exchange Telegraph (British) dispatch from Zurich, Switzerland, said Chancellor Hitler, Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop, Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering and Gen. Wilhelm Keitel considered the situation at a special meeting.

(According to this report they decided to give Yugoslavia three days to accept the axis-Japanese alliance. The dispatch said an immediate Yugoslav decision was deemed necessary to avoid upsetting Germany's military preparations in Bulgaria for a blow against Greece.)

According to DNE, the new Belgrade government felt itself unable to reply to the German demands until it has achieved "clarification of the domestic and foreign situation."

An internal split in the Yugoslav regime was reported developing already. DNE said political circles were discussing whether Croat representatives could remain in the cabinet formed by Premier Gen. Dusan Simovic.

The agency said the Croats might bolt the cabinet unless the government recognizes validity of the Croat autonomy agreement reached by former Premier Dragisa Cvetkovic and Vice Premier Vladimir Macek.

Informed Berlin quarters predicted that the climax of the gathering German-Yugoslav crisis may burst wide open this week end.

The Garden Clinic

QUESTION: I have had little success in trying to grow paper white narcissus in pebbles and water. I have healthy looking plants but they do not blossom. Just when the bud is about to open, it turns brown and dries up and the leaves begin to wilt. Can you tell me what causes this? It is not lack of water. J. H. J., Wheeling, W. Va.

ANSWER: Although paper white narcissus that have not been properly handled in curing and shipping act like this, it is more likely that gas in the atmosphere from the gas stove, gas log, or furnace is the cause of the trouble. Paper white narcissus are one of the most susceptible plants to gas injury. There is, of course, nothing you can do for this except try to grow them in the rooms as far away from gas as possible.

QUESTION: In what way is soil improved by digging coal ashes into it? J. H. J., Wheeling, W. Va.

ANSWER: Coal ashes loosen heavy clay soils. Although they have no fertilizing value whatsoever, if a two to four inch layer of coal ashes is thoroughly mixed with the top foot of soil it will greatly improve its ability to grow plants. Of course, adequate plant food should be provided by the application of a complete commercial fertilizer with an analysis of 4-12-4. Use about three pounds to 100 square feet, spading into the soil with the ashes. I further recommend that some organic matter be added into the form of peat moss, rotted leaves, rotted manure or similar material. Up to a two-inch layer of this may be mixed with the soil.

QUESTION: I have a question in connection with your recommendations for a cold frame. Should it be placed on the east side of the house during the early season to start annuals and should it be shaded later in the year to start perennials? Should the two-inch layer of sand and peat moss which you recommended be placed on top of the six-inch layer of soil. C. E. W., Akron.

ANSWER: I have had very satisfactory results with cold frames facing east, south, or west for growing seedlings in the spring or other plants throughout the season. If these same frames are to be used for rooting cuttings during the summer or for evergreen cuttings during the winter, they may be shaded with a lath shade consisting of common building laths nailed to side strips, the laths the width of one lath apart.

In sowing seedlings directly in the cold frame, I put the two-inch layer of sand and peat moss on top of the soil so that the seed bed inside the frame is two inches above the outside soil.

QUESTION: Would you please tell me what will kill a big elm tree without girdling it? It is about three feet through with a very large spread of branches. I want to remove it but it is right where I cannot cut it down. A. E. M., Wooster.

ANSWER: Although plants can be killed by the application of poisons such as sodium arsenite and sodium chlorate, they would also kill all other plants nearby and so have no advantage over girdling. Besides, you would still have the tree to cut down. I recommend that you completely girdle the tree sometime this spring, cutting away two or three inches of the bark down into the wood. In this way the tree will leaf out and be alive most of the summer. Since none of the manufactured food will be getting back to the roots reply to the protest delivered to Belgrade regarding anti-German incidents and demonstrations there and elsewhere in Yugoslavia. The German news agency and official radio described these incidents in full detail.

ABOARD U. S. S. BENSON, March 29—Prospects of rough weather impelled President Roosevelt and his fishing party of close friends, including some cabinet members, to return to Port Everglades, Fla., harbor early today.

The yacht Potomac and the accompanying destroyer Benson made the Friday night run from north of the Bahamas in order to assure a comfortable passage for the group and to guarantee the President's arrival on the Florida coast for his radio address to Jackson Day dinners being held tonight throughout the country.

Arrival at Port Everglades completed a leisurely circle of the North Bahama Cays, covering only 400 miles in seven days with nightly anchorages. The decision to return to Florida was made last night after receipt of adverse weather predictions with the memories of last Wednesday buffeting off Grand Bahama Island in a gale and rough seas still fresh.

from the leaves, the roots will gradually starve to death and the tree will die. In this manner there will be no suckering of the roots.

QUESTION: We would like to have our garden soil tested. Will you please tell us where we can have it done? How much we must send for the test, and what are the charges? Mrs. E. Z. Men-tor.

ANSWER: Although you can take your soil to your county agricultural agent who will send it in to the University for testing without charge, there really is very little need for testing the average garden soil unless you are interested in growing some special plant such as rhododendron or azalea which require an acid soil. If you fertilize your yard every year with a complete commercial fertilizer, you will have ample fertility and there will be no need for soil testing.
